

Dear Families,

We hope you are staying healthy and safe.

The Long Island S.T.E.A.M Group has exciting summer SCIENCE, BRIXOLOGY and Crayola ART camps planned for this season, and we will always do what is right to ensure the safety of our community, campers and staff alike.

We are optimistic about running our camps this summer. But as all camp programs in New York State, we have not received any information from County or State Officials as of now, indicating that specialty camps like ours will or will not be able to open this summer. Also, the American Camp Association, in conjunction with key medical and health personnel, are collaborating with the CDC and State governments to create new guidelines for all camps to safely operate, which we are paying close attention to.

As we get closer to the start of the camp season, we will update you on any new policies, program revisions or changes in a timely fashion. It is our goal to accommodate our camp families as best we can through this level of uncertainty. We ask that you please check our website for news and information regarding this summer and the changes that may occur. We are committed to do what is needed to serve our camp community the proper way.

At the moment, our offices are closed, but we are working and planning remotely. Please feel free to call or email if you have any concerns or questions. We will do our very best to provide you with whatever information is available to us.

Please follow us on social media for exciting news and activities, and please check the Mad Science of Long Island and the Crayola Imagine Arts Academy of Long Island websites frequently for updates to their summer camp schedules.

Thank you, and stay safe.
